See you in June!

Message from the President

This will be the last Bulletin before the Annual General Meeting (AGM). It is loaded with important information regarding this event. Take the time to become familiar with the rules and regulations, the deadlines for entries, the educational seminars, schedule of events and (most important) when we eat and have lots of fun.

The White Dexter Auction is always entertaining every year, and I am sure this year will be no exception. Just bring your check-book (cash is nice, too), and remember, this happens only once a year.

We all have one thing in common – the most wonderful cattle in the world!

The Board of Directors has many items on the agenda for discussion on Thursday. We have a lot of “housekeeping” to get done. It can be difficult to address some of the more sensitive issues when you only communicate electronically throughout the year.

As always, please stop by and introduce yourselves to all the other Dexter owners.

Remember, we all have one thing in common: the most wonderful cattle in the world. See you in a few weeks!!!!

Roberta Wieringa

The AGM's back — with Baxter Black!

Baxter Black has been described as a cowboy, philosopher, humorist, National Public Radio commentator, former large-animal vet and, according to The New York Times, “probably the nation’s most successful living poet.” On June 11, he’ll add another title to the list – Dexter promoter – when he entertains guests after the Annual General Meeting’s Saturday dinner.

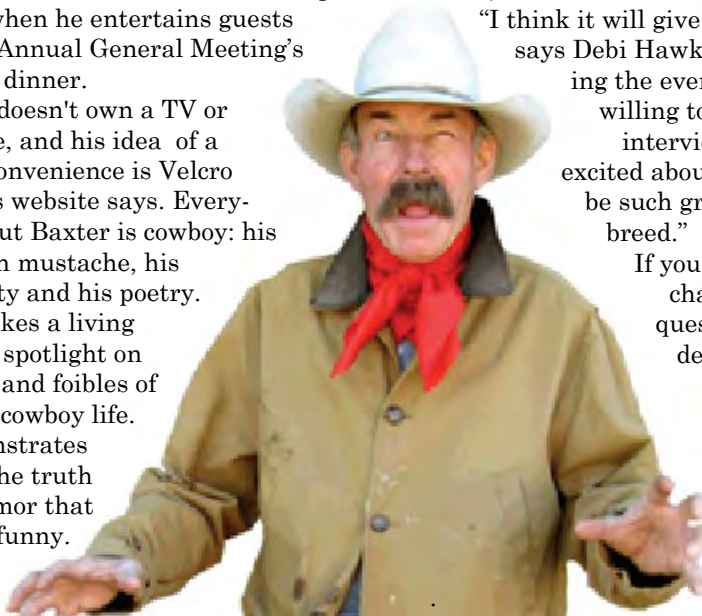

Black doesn’t own a TV or cell phone, and his idea of a modern convenience is Velcro chaps, his website says. Everything about Baxter is cowboy: his cartoonish mustache, his personality and his poetry.

He makes a living shining a spotlight on the flaws and foibles of everyday cowboy life. He demonstrates that it’s the truth in his humor that makes it funny.

Baxter’s rib-tickling performance is free to ADCA members who are registered and attending the AGM. Members who want to drive in just for the Baxter Black show or guests can purchase tickets for $30 each. About 200 tickets are available on first-come, first-served.

“I think it will give us great publicity,” says Debi Hawkins, who is organizing the event. “Baxter Black is willing to do radio spots and interviews. I am so excited excited about this! I think it will be such great exposure for the breed.”

If you’re interested in purchasing tickets or have questions, email Debi at destites@msn.com. Or, Give her a call at 405-226-6456. You can read more about the AGM on pp. 14-17.

Regional Directors' Messages

REGION 6

Well, spring has finally sprung, and grass is greening up. It is time for vaccinations (if you do this). Don't forget fly tags or rubs. If you are not sure what you should be doing for your cattle's health, contact your local veterinarian, 4H or FFA teacher to find out what is recommended for your area.

Come learn more about these wonderful cows!

The Annual General Meeting (AGM) is in Stillwater, Okla., this June from the 9th to the 11th. The weather should be great, and the AGM should be great, also. Come enjoy, have fun and learn more about these wonderful little cows. Hope to see you all there.

Remember to tell someone about Dexters this week.

Gene Pittman

REGION 8

As the new Region 8 director, I want to thank all of you for the emails and phone calls. It has been great to establish contact and try to answer some of your questions and concerns.

One of my priorities is to improve the amount and quality of information each of you receive. To that end, I have established an email mailing list and have been routinely sending out updates and information related to Dexters.

If you are doing anything that is newsworthy, let me know.

However, I have noticed that many Region 8 members have email security features that reject emails without verification or authentication. If you have your email account set up this way, I would encourage you not to block emails that come from my address.

The email address I use to send information to Region 8 members is charles@beavertreefarm.com. If you wish to receive these emails, please set up your email filters accordingly. If you have NOT gotten any of my emails, please contact me at this same address and I will make sure that you are on my distribution list.

One other major objective I have for this region is to better promote the Dexter breed. If you are doing anything that is newsworthy, please let me know, and I will try to help promote your farm and Dexters in general.

For example, if you show your Dexters at a local fair, give a presentation to a local civic group, etc., these are all items you can get published in your local newspaper. This creates interest in the Dexter breed in general and helps all of us. My experience has been that if you contact the local newspaper, write an article for it, invite the writers out to your farm, etc., they are more than willing to help you. They are looking for stories; use this to your advantage!

Again, it is my goal to try to serve the membership and address issues that are of concern or interest to you. Please feel free to contact me anytime!

Charles Townson

REGION 10

Hopefully everyone will take this year's opportunity to visit Stillwater, Okla., for our National Show & Sale.

Plans are well under way for the National Show & Sale in Ft. Wayne, Ind., in June 2012. I would like to take this time to invite everyone to the Allen County Fairgrounds, Ft. Wayne, Ind., June 21-24, 2012. We will be starting the festivities off on Thursday night with a community bonfire, so bring your lawn chairs and coolers to sit around fire and socialize. A "grill out" will start the evening off, and s'more fixin's will be available for the young at heart later on. Our host hotel will be Don Hall Guest House in Ft. Wayne with many other hotels available close by.

We will be honored to have international judge Nancy Edge from New Zealand offering her assistance for the showing. She also will be giving a seminar for people to learn the proper structure of a Dexter. She visited us in Springfield, Mo., several years ago and has a great knowledge of Dexters.

Ft. Wayne is just about the central part of Region 10, so if you would like to see what this side of the country has to offer, it will be quite a show, with Michigan supporting over 1,000 Dexters in the current registry. Please look for further information of the Annual General Meeting (AGM) in future Bulletins.

I also would like to make sure our region members are aware that Region 10 will be hosting a get-acquainted meeting at the Allen

This has been a year for many newcomers into the world of Dexters.

County Fairgrounds, Ft. Wayne, Ind., June 25, 2011 at 2 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. This will be the introduction to the fairgrounds to see facilities for newcomers and to view video clips from the National Show in Stillwater. If you have never been to an AGM, this is the prime time to learn what they are all about. It should get you more acquainted with our plans to host the 2012 AGM.

I would like to take this time to welcome all the new Dexter members to Region 10. This has been a year for many newcomers into the world of Dexters. I hope you will enjoy them as much as the rest of us do. If at any time you have a question about anything, please don't hesitate to email lrininger@netzero.net or call (269) 668-3637; leave a brief message and I will try to contact you the same day.

We also will be hosting a meeting for election of a new Region 10 director in November, so please keep this in mind and think about who you would like to nominate for 2012. I appreciate the vote you have given me, but as much as I enjoy being director, it is just impossible to keep everything all in focus with the plans of 2012 AGM under way. I really would like to put all my focus on hosting a great AGM for our region.

Linda Rininger

REGION 11

Well I'm sure you are all having the same cool, wet spring as we are in western New York, and I'm sure you are as unimpressed as I am about it! The couple of warm days we had were a real tease, as I think they are threatening us with more snow now.

Calving has started for many of us, and I am hearing from some of you about your new little bundles. This year I have had a couple of heifers, so for me that is a big change. I haven't had heifers in years.

Calving has started, and I'm hearing from some of you about your little bundles.

I have been getting calls for milking prospects and some enquiries for bulls, which I have passed on to those who have informed me they have animals for sale. There is a Region 11 web page which lists animals for sale, so please email me your ad at MidhillDexters@yahoo.com, and I will get that listed for you; it's a free ad.

I'm hoping to see some of you at the Annual General Meeting (AGM) in Oklahoma this year; it's a long trip for us, but I know it will be a great AGM. Region 7 has been hard at work for a long time now, so your support would be appreciated.

If you can't attend please consider sponsoring a class or if you would like to donate to the White Dexter Auction and can get something to me, I would be glad to take it down there for you.

Stay dry!

Vet's Corner

by Jeff Collins, DVM

Hopefully by the time you read this Bulletin, spring will have fully sprung, mud will have hardened and green will have become the predominant color again. As I write this, our clinic is dealing with the various issues we see every spring due to the adverse and quickly changing weather.

The biggest issue we deal with every spring is scouring calves. Last year I wrote about the importance of preventing scours (diarrhea) in calves and various approaches to help prevent pathogens from getting a foothold in your calves. This year I will attempt to give a brief overview of the most common pathogens seen and when they typically affect the calf.

I will give some treatment suggestions, but I must preface these recommendations by cautioning that these suggestions are not intended to become "blanket treatments" for any scouring problem; it would be wise to consult with your veterinarian regarding your particular situation.

When calves scour within the first seven days of life, the most likely infectious causes are Rota virus, Corona virus or E. coli (bacteria). Often there will be some blood in the diarrhea and/or strings of intestinal lining. The viruses can do a lot of damage to the calf's intestines, often sloughing the intestinal lining.

Unfortunately, there is nothing to combat the viruses themselves other than supporting the calf via fluids (oral or intravenous electrolytes) and slowing the gut down with various products that either coat the gut or help to slow the digestive process a bit (Bentonite, Bismo-Kote, electrolyte gels).

Antibiotics also are used in the face of viral scours, because calves are very prone to secondary bacterial infections when their gut is compromised. E. coli scours is usually very easily treated with antibiotics (specifically, procaine penicillin or ceftiofur).

For calves from 7 to 14 days of age, the most common scour problems are either Clostridial (bacterial) or due to Cryptosporidium (protozoa). Both can be lethal rather quickly unless treated properly.

Clostridial scours tends to be the most common and lethal scours at this age. It may present as a bloat or a painful abdomen (kicking at belly, laying down frequently) on a calf that is staggering around.

Clostridial scours is often called "overeating disease" and usually affects the largest calves that seem to be doing the best prior to the onset. It usually occurs when the bacteria take advantage of the surplus of milk in the calf's gut; as a result, it produces gas and toxins that are detrimental to the life of the calf. Gas builds up in the abomasum (stomach) and/or small intestine, putting pressure on the diaphragm and making it difficult for the calf to breathe. The gas in the abomasum gives the gut a characteristic "sloshy" sound when manipulated. The toxins get into the bloodstream, often through an abomasal ulcer or compromised intestinal lining, poisoning the body and causing a drop in body temperature. When calves die from Clostridium, it usually occurs due to a perforated ulcer, toxic overload (body shuts down), bloat or a severely hemorrhaged small intestine.

These calves usually need an intravenous treatment with fluids, along with a Clostridial antitoxin injection. Procaine penicillin given orally and in the muscle helps rid the body of Clostridium. Flunixin products also aid the body in getting rid of the toxins.

Cryptosporidium is a protozoa, which makes it very difficult to treat. It is a pathogen that takes advantage of poor hygiene, loving moist areas and dirty bottles and passing very easily between calves. It is one that is best prevented, but if encountered should be treated much like we treat the viral pathogens: helping the calf get through it by replenishing fluid, slowing the gut down, preventing secondary bacterial scours and encouraging the growth of "good" bacteria in the gut. Many "crypto" calves will need an intravenous treatment to help sustain their hydration as they go through the duration of the infection.

Crypto also tends to slough the intestinal lining, allowing the calf to lose hydration fast, which weakens the calf. Probiotics (Lactobacillus acidophilus and others) are very important to provide supplemental bacteria to aid the gut in normal digestive processes, helping it return to normal faster. It would be wise to give a probiotic after any antibiotic treatment to a calf.

After two weeks of age Clostridial scours will still occur, but it tends to be less frequent as the calf's immune system strengthens and is able to fight of an impending infection. Bloody scours or black stained feces after three weeks of age is typically a coccidia (another protozoa) problem, but that should be verified with a fecal test done by your veterinarian before treatment. If caught early enough these calves do quite well with a series of amprolium treatments.

It would be wise to give a probiotic after any antibiotic treatment to a calf.

If possible, in the face of a scouring outbreak, before any treatment is given to a scouring calf, a fecal sample should be taken and sent to a diagnostic lab via your veterinarian. If a calf dies, taking the whole calf to the diagnostic lab would maximize the possibility of finding the culprit.

The biggest problem with sending samples in is knowing what to do while you wait for results. Recently, there have been some quick test kits available that your veterinarian may carry. They give results within 15 minutes and can test for E. coli, Rota and Corona viruses and Cryptosporidium, making it easier to decide how to treat a particular calf.

Ideally your calves will be running around with their tails in the air on green grass, but if you do encounter scours this spring, hopefully the few suggestions offered in this article will be helpful for you. If you have any ideas or questions for a future vetscorner article, please send me an email at cowvet03@yahoo.com.

Happy calving!

Jeff Collins DVM

Keeping anthrax bacteria at bay

After identifying the year's first case of anthrax in the state's livestock, the Texas Animal Health Commission (TACH) sent out this reminder to cattle owners: If an animal dies from the disease and its carcass isn't properly disposed of by burning, the bacteria can spill out into the soil and remain dormant for long periods. The anthrax bacteria may resurface on grass or forage under ideal weather and soil conditions during the spring and summer and could then be ingested.

Anthrax is a bacterial disease caused by Bacillus anthracis, which is a naturally occurring organism found throughout the world. Symptoms of anthrax in livestock can be non-specific, including high fever or convulsions; in many cases, acute death is the first sign noticed by a producer.

TAHC regulations require that not only the animal carcasses, but also any contaminated manure and/or bedding be disposed of by incineration until thoroughly consumed. This requirement keeps wild animals from being exposed to the disease. It will also kill the bacteria, possibly preventing another site from being contaminated with anthrax.

The following are general biosecurity tips that can be helpful to livestock producers who suspect they have an anthrax-affected animal or carcass:

Anthrax bacteria may resurface on grass or forage under ideal weather and soil conditions during spring and summer and could then be ingested.

► Wear long sleeves and gloves when handling carcasses or when working with or vaccinating livestock to avoid contaminating any sores or scratches on arms or hands. See your doctor if you develop an unusual-looking sore on your hands, arms or other exposed skin.

Although it is very rare to contract skin anthrax, this infection requires treatment with antibiotics prescribed by a physician.

► Practice good sanitation. Wash your hands after handling livestock (even if you wear gloves). Disinfect equipment used on the animals or carcasses.

► Keep pets and children away from carcasses or bones of dead animals.

► Move healthy animals away from a pasture where animals have died from the disease.

► Properly dispose of animal carcasses by burning to prevent exposure to other animals, such as predators or dogs.

► Vaccinate livestock if cases occur in the surrounding areas. Anthrax vaccine is a live vaccine, so it must not be administered with antibiotics. Vaccinated animals must be withheld from slaughter for two months.

► Restrict the movement of livestock onto or from an affected premise until animals can develop immunity through vaccination (about 10 days).

Visit <http://www.tahc.state.tx.us> or call 1-800-550-8242 for more information about anthrax.

Your ADCA Board in Action: WorkYoke Summary

March Summary

Online pedigree additions

There was discussion regarding the addition of photos or uploading files to the pedigree page online without going through the registrar. It was felt that only the registrar should be able to change the database.

Registration policy clarification

In the past, established ADCA policy has been to request that the seller of a calf pay for the transfer and give all paperwork at the time of service and/or sale to the buyer. Additional policy wording/clarification needs to include semen, embryos or any other method of creation.

Full parentage verification for registration

Discussion for the implementation of full parentage verification for registration (now required by many cattle breeds in the U.S.) was discussed. This is a policy that the ADCA may explore in the future.

Code of Conduct/Ethics Committee standard operating procedures

The Board of Directors (BOD) continued review of preliminary document language.

Suggested BOD agenda items for 2011 Annual General Meeting (AGM)

- Clarification of insurance coverage for non-BOD committee members
- ADCA website management and maintenance
- Registrar backup and compensation
- Marketing and publication efforts on a nationwide scale to promote the breed
- Standardized show classes for future AGMs
- Candidates for officer election
- Contract with UC Davis to afford ADCA members better testing fee rates
- Lawyer liaison designee
- Backup for WorkYoke
- Stipend for ADCA liaison to Texas A&M
- Addition of photos, files, etc., to online pedigree.

Secretary's report

Nine packets of information were requested and mailed out during the month of March.

February Summary

Code of Conduct/Ethics Committee standard operating procedures

Introducing
West Wind Thomas
ADCA #12515

"Tommy" completes the "Yankee Trio" featuring traditionally bred New York State bulls from the earliest Dexter bloodlines. As with Lochinvar (#8711) and Ace of Clove Brook (#14152), Tommy's ancestors bridge the history of the American Dexter herd, connecting the original Irish herd of Dexters with the earliest imported Dexters from England. Renowned pedigrees appear repeatedly in Tommy's ancestry.

Tommy is one of the few living sons of the well-respected bull, Jamie O'Callen (#1949), and dam, K'RO'S Rita (#10198). Tommy is a genetically horned black bull, carrying both red and dun. He is confident and curious and possesses an incredibly gentle nature. Long and deep-bodied, he has all the classic characteristics of an Irish Dexter bull.

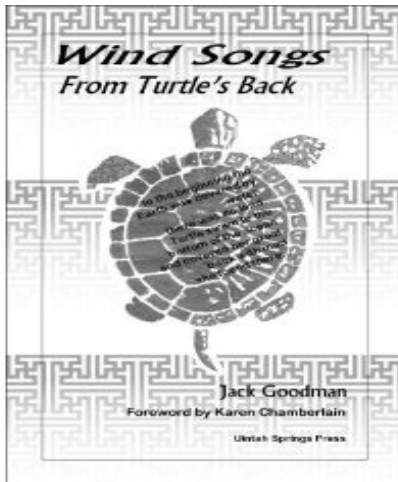

Measurement: 47" at hip • Genetic markers completed and recorded at two labs • Tested negative for major STDs • PHA mutant-free and non-carrier of Chondrodysplasia • Carries AI/A2.

Straws: $30 each, discount on multiples.

Elizabeth Freeland, Cherry Valley, N.Y.; Vytaustas Gudelis, Richfield Springs, N.Y.; and James Barr, Smethport, Pa., thank you for the gentle, loving nurturing given to Tommy over the years. Thank you to Judy Sponaugle for pedigree research. Thank you to K'RO'S Rita's long-established Dexter breeder, Kathleen Smith, Fort Plain, N.Y. It does take a 'village' of dedicated Dexter breeders to produce quality, traditional Irish Dexters!

"Moosterpieces"

And you thought velvet paintings were only about Elvis ...

As Dexter breeders, we are all aware Dexters are a tri-purpose breed — used for milk, meat and work. I have discovered one of my Dexters in particular has another skill, one for painting!

As last year's National Champion Cow, Windfall's Velvet has always known how to get extra attention, but primarily she tries to figure out how to get an extra meal. I have always been interested in training animals, and Velvet has an incentive to learn.

One afternoon I decided I wanted to see if Velvet could paint.

I had seen other species of animals paint, including elephants, horses, primates and dogs. I have had previous experience teaching animals to paint when I worked at a local zoo. I just knew Velvet would paint with some encouragement.

Animal painting is done through positive reinforcement of a behavior that the animal already possesses. I purchased the canvas, treats and, most importantly, nontoxic paint.

Nontoxic paint is very important when painting with animals, because sometimes the animals ingest small amounts of the paint when using their noses to push the paint around.

The paints are dotted on the canvas and treats can be placed on the canvas as well to encourage the animal to investigate.

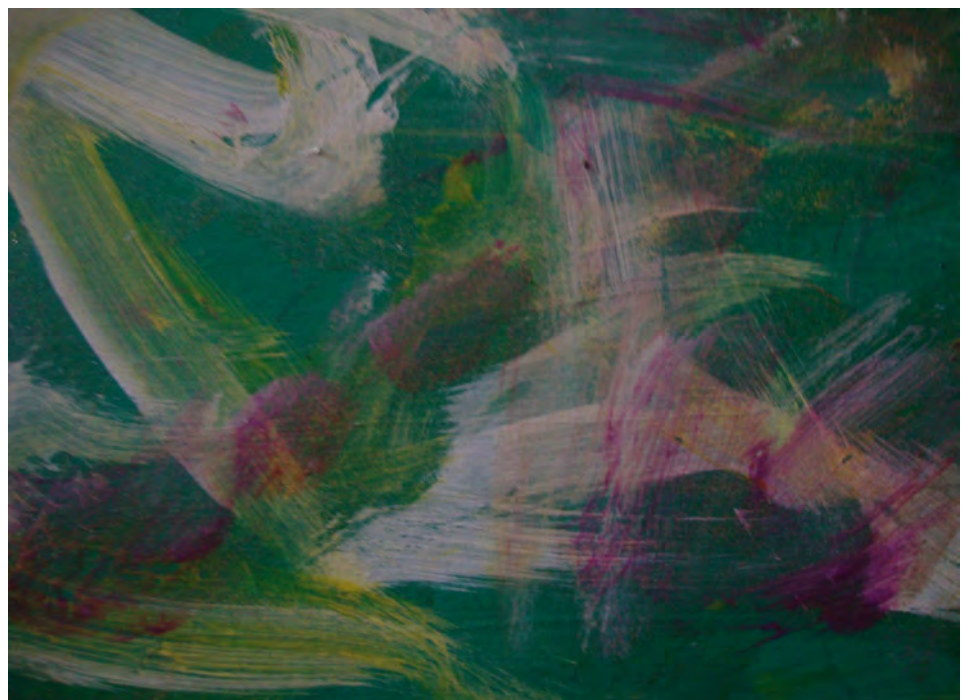

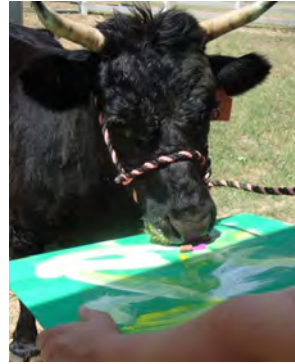

With the Dexter's natural inquisitive nature, Velvet took to painting easily. She pushed the paints around the canvas, creating a very nice abstract piece.

Since they are created by cows, I have decided to call these works of art "moosterpieces." This is something kids would love to see: Velvet painting her moosterpieces.

The painting Velvet is shown creating in the photos will be framed and donated to the White Dexter auction at the 2011 National Show and Sale in Stillwater, Okla.

Description: Red, dehorned female, PHA- and Chondro-free. Seana is a very nice, long-sided female. She is halter broken and has been shown in the past. Seana was confirmed bred in March, so she should have a late-September/early-October calf. She is bred to Tama Titanium, who is a red homozygous polled bull; he is also PHA- and Chondro-free. This female will make an excellent addition to your herd or show line.

Help minimize ADCA registry errors!

Please double-check your information, especially breeder and animal numbers, before sending in registrations and transfers.

Also, if you are registering an animal, sending any test results along with (rather than before) the registration form helps ensure that the test information is recorded on its certificate.
